

The market is flooded with books claiming to help you and I to get more clients, but there are a few books which really can make a difference.

There are 2 types of books to help you get more clients, those which give you the exact words to use word for word to get instant results with crystal clear direction and those which are bland and fluffy.

I have good news and bad news, the bad news first, most of the authors in this field have done nothing and are only talking theory, the good news is my bestselling book, "Stop selling and get clients" with the 9 proven steps to help professionals who want more clients, without even selling.

Which has been recommended by Australia's number 1, bestselling author, Allan Pease, as well as many other leading authors.

This easy reading book in 10 minutes a day for 9 days will help you master the 9 essential skills to get more clients, and help you realise that you are closer to success than you think with giving you a nudge in the right direction.

Skills like building instant trust in seconds, how to close more easily, how to make appointments on the phone without fear or rejection, how to network effectively, and how to get automatic referrals so you no longer need to make cold calls.

So what's going to be easier for you -- to wander round the book stores and guess -- or order this book now and discover the secrets of changing the results you get and enjoy the taste of success?

If you want to get more clients immediately then order your book today.
